

PV Log: (circle one) Poem / Movie / Picture / LyricDate 10/18/13Title The Lone FlowerAuthor / Director / Unknown

Context (Where Found / Viewed / Read?)

Found it on Google images while searching for photos

Content / CD / Summary / Precis (Say? "Plot? Setting/Situation? Key lines/phrases scenes, etc? )

This photo points out individuality. The picture features a field of yellow tulips, and then a lone red flower in the middle. The red flower is definitely the odd man out in this flower society, but it is brighter than the yellow flowers and stands out more.

Content / CM / Meaning? / Theme(s)?

The theme of this photo is individuality and standing out in society. We don't have to conform with society and it's okay to be ourselves. Colleges don't accept people for being like everyone else, they accept an individual who is special and different. The people that shine in our world are those that aren't afraid to get out there and show off who they really are.

Form (Diction? Construction Terms? Symbolism?)

The red flower in the field of yellow flowers represents each one of us. On the inside, we all feel different from everyone else. We know that we have the potential to be great and that we can be different. The red flower truly is the person who actually shows their individuality. The red flower is the person we know who isn't afraid to get out there and supply the world with their God-given talents.

Commentary (What do you want to say? Why like? Questions? Synthesis / Allusions-Connections / Relevance to personal experience, to literature, 20Q's? etc.)? "Poetic" Traits?

This picture is extremely inspirational. It encourages each one of us to be who we really are. A world where everyone is the same would be a completely boring place to live. We are different so that we can help others widen their horizons and widen ours in the process. Opposites attract because different people want to learn more about someone who is not like them. Individuality is very poetic.